EAT

Barbecue

Summertime is when we think of eating outside and firing up our grills. But when we want to let the pros BBQ for us, we visit a few of our finger licking favorites.

Grand Ole BBQ Flinn Springs

Opened earlier this year, the venue offers Andy Harris's famous Central Texas Barbecue as well as a large dining and entertainment venue. The slow cooked menu includes brisket, pulled pork, Texas turkey, Texas hot links, St. Louis cut spare ribs, and beef short ribs. Plus there's steaks, burgers, chili, and bar food such as Frito Pie! And pies for dessert – Chess Pie, Pecan Pie, and Texas Flood Pie. Yummy! And live music too. Also visit their sister restaurant in North Park – Grand Ole BBQ Y Asado which offers Argentine-style BBQ.

Park 101

Carlsbad's Park 101 features delicious barbecue options, like the Tri Tip Tacos with chimichurri, pickled onion, herbed goat cheese and arugula, the St. Louis Rib Plate, and a mouth-watering Pulled Pork Sandwich. We like to take our trays of BBQ out to sit by Park 101's open fire on a cool summer night.

The Pioneer

Situated just outside of La Mesa, The Pioneer came to fruition when locally esteemed barbecue master, Chef Hanis Cavin, decided to bring life to his title as the "pioneer," a nickname he earned by being one of the first chefs to truly break into the fast-casual restaurant concept. Chef Hanis has unleashed his creativity with dishes such as Burn Pork Belly Ends prepared with a honey glaze and mac 'n' cheese schmeat, Crispy Rib Cake plated with Alabama white barbecue sauce and chicharron gremolata, plus an array of perfectly smoked meat entrees.

The Smoking Gun

Want BBQ for breakfast? The Smoking Gun in the Gaslamp District has a brunch menu that includes a hearty Brisket Biscuit N' Gravy dish with smoked beef brisket, BBQ gravy, caramelized onions, arugula, and two eggs. Pair it with a Smokey Sunrise cocktail (tequila, mezcal, lime, cold pressed orange juice, house grenadine) and you'll really wake up!
